

*Best Practices for Designing
Your Candidate Journey*

Candidate Journey Map

One of the strongest drivers of high candidate satisfaction is the candidate's readiness for the HireVue Video Interview. Our data tells us that the greater a candidate's understanding of a company's hiring process, the more satisfied they are with it. There are several opportunities to prepare your candidates. Don't miss out on leveraging the best practices outlined below to achieve your desired business outcomes.

Before HireVue

Before HireVue

With over 39 million interviews completed using HireVue we have found that our most successful customers, across many industries and job roles, approach the candidate journey with the best practices outlined in this guide. Their approaches are not one size fits all, but have helped our customers achieve their desired business outcomes.

60% Candidates who did not complete the interview said it was because they: “didn’t want to/didn’t understand” or had “perceived technical difficulties”

Candidate education and preparedness is critical to addressing these issues and has a direct impact on candidate experience and interview completion rate.

We recommend to include these Best Practices, where applicable:

- ☐ Provide an interview process preview.
- ☐ Offer video interviewing tips.
- ☐ Include candidate FAQs.
- ☐ Define the “why” for candidates.
- ☐ Provide a clear call to action.

- ❑ Invitation - Customize your invitation to inform candidates of where they are in the process, that in order to remain in consideration they need to complete their interview, and provide them with additional guidance and encouragement.
- ❑ Scheduled Reminders - Set up 1-2 automated reminders that let candidates know they are still in consideration and encourage timely completion of the HireVue Video Interview.

During HireVue

During HireVue

Interviews can be stressful. Too much stress can affect the candidate's performance negatively and the outcome may be unfortunate. That is why it is even more important when using a video interview to quickly build rapport and help put the candidate at ease.

82% of candidates with a great experience say they're "EXTREMELY LIKELY" to refer their friends and colleagues.

Take the stress out of interviewing by delivering a candidate-centric experience. The less stress candidates feel during the hiring process, the more positive their experience and the better your hiring outcomes.

This can be achieved by the following:

- ☐ Properly introduce your brand and culture
- ☐ Be welcoming and make candidates at ease
- ☐ Add human connection as often as possible
- ☐ Be transparent in the selection process
- ☐ Give a few chances to take interview
- ☐ Eliminate tricky questions

Candidate Satisfaction Survey

Benefit of the Survey

The ability to ask a variety of specific, targeted questions about video interviewing is the biggest benefit of CSAT. This allows us to hone in on what's working and where candidates might be getting stuck.

Net Promoter Score vs. Candidate Satisfaction

In the Candidate Experience Survey, NPS, CSAT, and the driver questions are designed to work together. A good way to think about it is the NPS is an indicator of how the candidate feels about your company at this stage of the hiring process and after taking a video interview, while CSAT is indicator of how the candidate feels about video interviewing specifically.

Treat candidates like customers

Use this opportunity to ensure candidates have positive associations with your brand regardless of the hiring outcome. Candidates will appreciate the following:

- Communicate the hiring process, expectations, and provide realistic job previews. With this information candidates can decide to continue with the process or even disposition themselves, creating time savings and satisfaction early in the process.
- Define and communicate how candidate and hiring manager support will be provided in centralized and decentralized processes. Service level standards should mirror the service you expect to deliver to customers.

Leverage automation opportunities

By designing an automated and forgiving process, you'll be able to hire candidates before your competitors.

- Consider add-on features like Reusability to let candidates re-use their interview for similar roles they apply for.
- Auto-disposition candidates after 3-weeks to clear the funnel and prompt re-engagement by communicating possible next steps.

Provide centralized graduate resources up-front

Remove any potential barriers of entry into the hiring process by clearly communicating the process to graduates. If they understand what's in it for them, FAQs, interview requirements, they will be more likely to complete their application.

Tailor branding to graduates

Leveraging current grads or interns in videos and imagery is key to gaining the graduate audience's buy-in. This is your chance to showcase your brand to them and why you are the right fit for them as much as they need to show this to you.

Create a sense of urgency

Setting shorter deadlines to complete HireVue will encourage graduates not to put it off while they continue looking for opportunities.
